Email News Updates Available from FSIS

September 14, 2004

The Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) now offers a free email notification service that provides the latest agency news including but not limited to recall announcements, export library updates, and publication of new regulations, as part of a pilot program.

Stakeholders can subscribe to the email notification service by registering an email address and selecting issues of interest and highlighting them as news priorities. The pilot program will run from Aug. 2004 through Jan. 2005.

To register, visit the FSIS Web site at <http://www.fsis.usda.gov>
